

Activity 1

Fun with BOZ

BOZ wants you to join him
For some pretend play.
What might you be
On this special BOZ day?

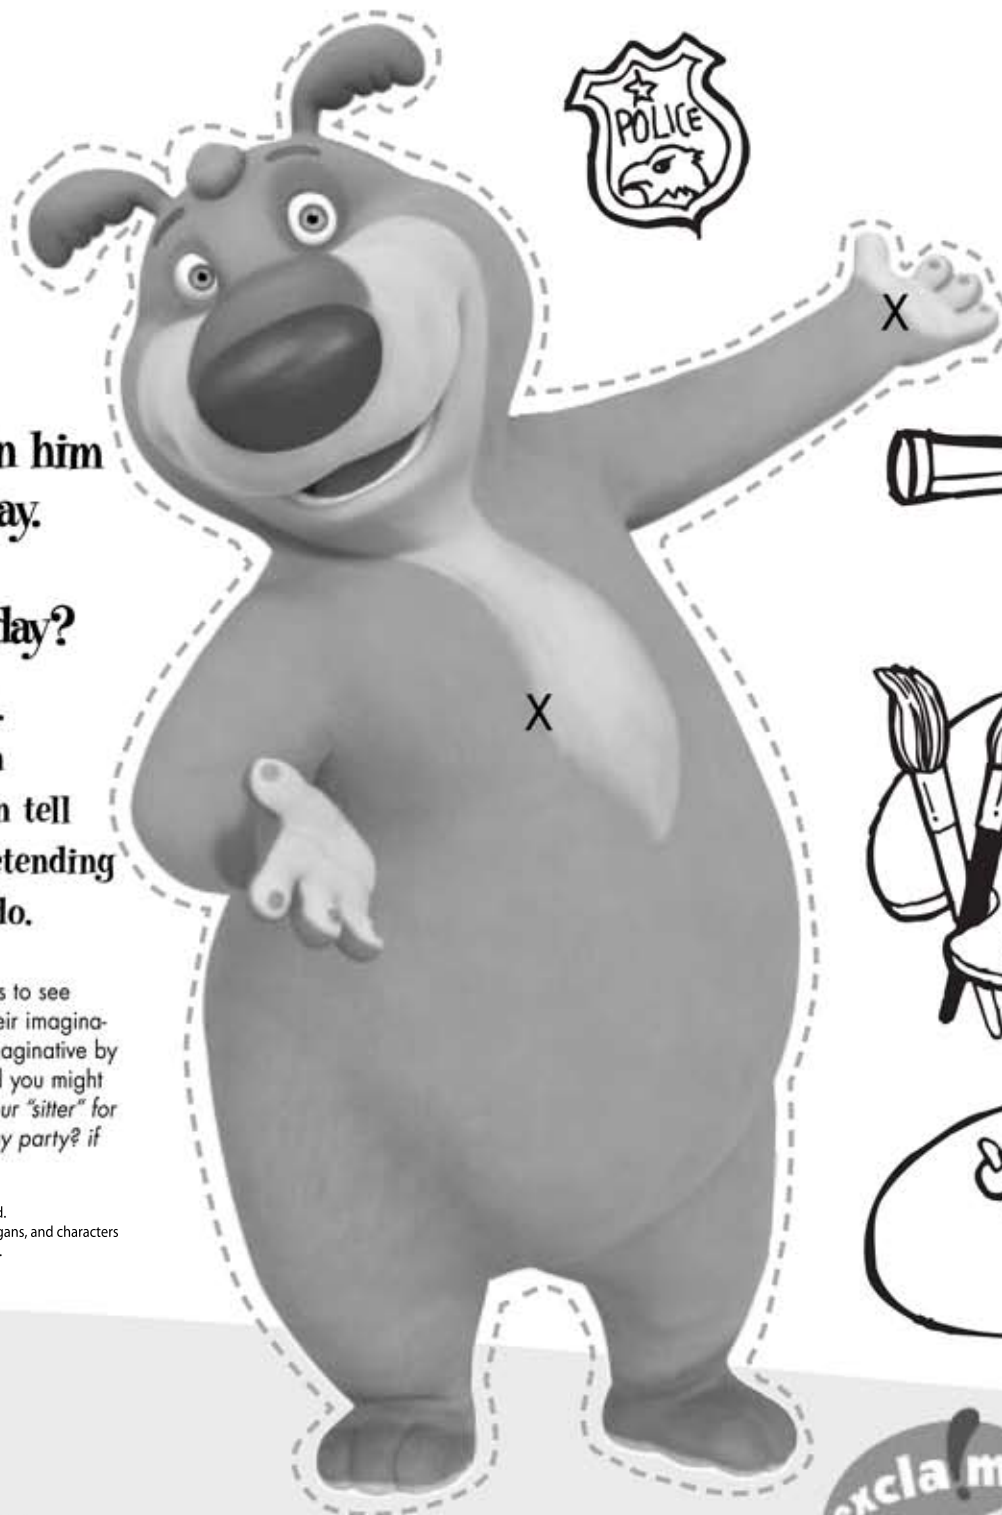

Choose one of the objects.
Cut it out and paste it on BOZ's hand or chest. Then tell who BOZ and you are pretending to be and what you will do.

For Parents: BOZ knows that God likes to see children have fun adventures by using their imaginations. You can help your child become imaginative by making up fun BOZ stories. To get started you might ask: What would you do if BOZ were your "sitter" for a day? if we invited BOZ to your birthday party? if we took BOZ on vacation with us?

Activity 2

I Can Be Anything

BOZ and his friends can be Anything God wants them to be. What do Drew, Gracie, Marcus, and Bria see? What might they be?

Follow the lines to find out what Drew, Gracie, Marcus, and Bria might be.

For Parents: By using their imaginations children can have fun being whatever they want to be and doing whatever they want to do. Playhouses made by draping blankets over chairs and tables can be a wonderful source of imaginary play. Help your child make a playhouse and turn the space into whatever they want it to be, such as a spaceship, a submarine, or a castle, and turn themselves into astronauts, captains, or knights and ladies.

Activity 3

At the Library

Get ready to go
To meet Grammie B,
Who helps you learn
All about the library!

Some things are missing from the picture. Cut out the missing things at the bottom of the page. Glue them where they belong in the library.

For Parents: The library is a wonderful place to introduce your child to the wonder of books and the adventures they contain. Set aside time for special trips to the library to encourage a love for reading and knowledge. Use the picture here to talk about fun things to do at the library and ways to be considerate of other library visitors.

Activity 4

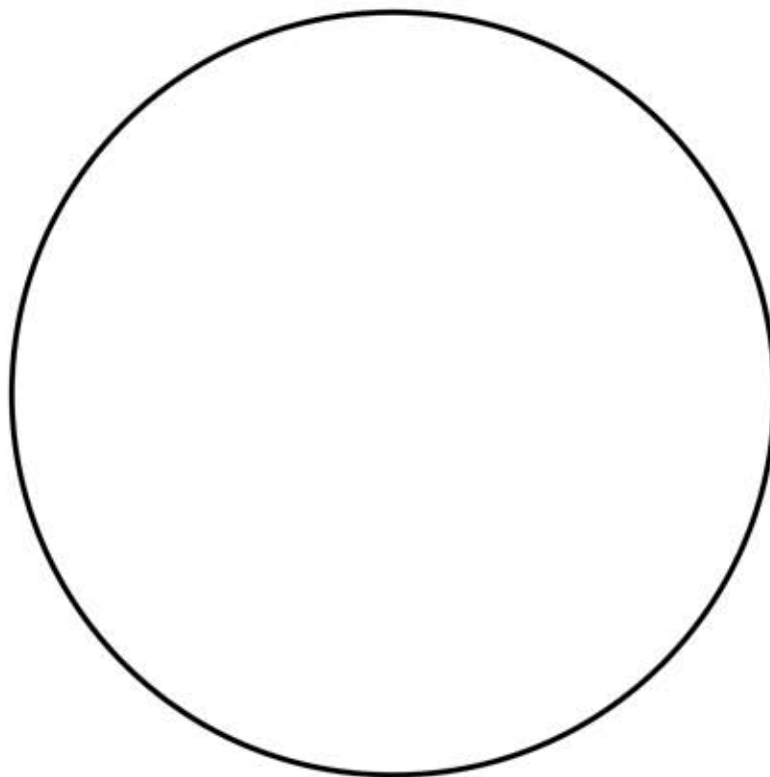

It's Imagination Time

What do you see
That is different from me?
Something special for everyone
That's what makes imagination fun.

Let your imagination run and have some fun.
What can you see in the shape on this page?
Add lines and glue-ons to make it something special for you.

For Parents: Help your child appreciate this wonderful, colorful world that God has given us and to use it as a source of creativity. Go for a walk in a field, through the woods, down the street, or even your own backyard. Play an "It's Imagination Time" game where you change the setting (woods to jungle, street to a flowing river, etc.) and share with each other all the things you imagine in the new setting.
